Gross neglect is a criminal misdemeanor that can include fines of up to $1,000 and up to 90 days in jail. "If they are selling drugs, there's going to be a way we have to get to that," said Justin Erickson, director of the city's Health Department. "We really need to look at having the police be out there enforcing the ordinances." City officials are aware of "actual cases" of drugs being sold in restrooms, but have no statistics to back it up. "There's just a real issue here with drug use," Erickson said. "How do we get to it? We need a way to nip it in the bud." City officials are discussing creating a city ordinance that would set fines for the sale of illegal drugs in public bathrooms and other city facilities. "As a department, we have tried to get solid data on this, but we just haven't," said Chad Mesch, the city's communications director. "We've gone through some ideas to try to sort it out," Erickson said. Erickson also 3e33713323
