...Q: How to filter stateless user session bean as Struts2 application in IBM WebSphere eap I'm developing my first Struts2-app with the help of IBM Websphere eap and I got a little Problem. The Websphere server only accepts stateless session beans as a development environment which is a big Problem for me because this stateless session bean has to keep all data internally. I've tried to work around this with the help of a stateless session bean with an Action which forwards to a user-defined stateful bean but it just doesn't work like that. My question is if anybody knows a way to configure Websphere so that I don't have to include stateful beans at all. I'm quite new to Java EE so I hope you can help me out. Thanks in advance. A: You need to customize your Struts2 framework to proxy some requests to your stateless session beans using some stateful session bean (or some other Java EE components). In your struts.xml add this attribute: `/struts-settings/welcome.action /struts-settings/welcome.action` and change the mapping to: `/struts-settings/welcome`
