For the first time in FIFA history, players are able to make in-game adjustments throughout the game thanks to new off-ball actions. With the most realistic ball physics the series has ever seen, players are free to pull the ball back or go on offensive runs, and can pass the ball up and down the pitch with more fluidity thanks to the new "Pass Assist" feature. Players also have the ability to switch defensive positions at any time and take on both midfield roles, as well as play with a variety of 3-2-3 and 4-3-3 formation. Since FIFA's inception, the series has been known for its innovative gameplay advancements. FIFA 20 is an all-new installment and introduces the TruPropotion Engine, which is powered by sport science to help deliver the most accurate soccer simulation in a game of this scale. With FIFA 20, players will have the opportunity to play the full 90 minutes of matches with up to five players through a new "Team Play" feature, which enables players to run their entire team through the same gameplay experience. FIFA 20 is available on Xbox One, PlayStation 4 and PC today for $59.99. FIFA 21 Commentary 2K Sports Producer, Austin S-F For the first time in series history, national commentators will get behind the microphone and play the game to bring the atmosphere of the match to life, with all 34 nations receiving their own unique commentary feature. "The national commentators will be able to make plays, to say things and compliment the players on the pitch," says Austin. "In addition, where games are won in the build-up to the game, it's a big moment, so it's imperative that we've got the full commentary feature for those moments." Leading the commentary team for this season of the FIFA series is Gregg Bedell, a 17-time radio play-by-play commentator for the University of North Carolina Tar Heels men's basketball team. Bedell's in-game enthusiasm matches that of the players. "For this season, we've got Ricky Rubio, Mario Balotelli and Keita Balde. With Rubio and Balotelli, I'm going to have to try to mimic the play-by-play
