serial.515Porcus (gens)
The gens Porcia was a plebeian family at ancient Rome.
Members of this gens
are first mentioned in the time of the Roman Republic, but they were probably allied to the Fabii, and were very often mentioned together with that clan in the Fasti. Few of the Porcii are found in the later Republic and the Empire, but they survive on as a small family into medieval times. Origin The nomen Porcius appears to be derived from porca, a pig, through a diminutive form of the cognomen Fuscus, a diminutive of filius, son. The Porcii appear to have been Latinized surnames, a comparatively

uncommon phenomenon during the early Republic. As a family, they may have been allied with the Fabii, of the decurio
gens, or plebs.

Branches and
cognomina The Porcii bore the following cognomina: Fuscus, a diminutive form of Fuscus. The family name Fuscus is likely a derivative of fil

Software architecture The LogiTRACE

Software Architecture is a modular system, which allows a fast and easy expansion and upgrade of the system.

Each module has its unique functionality and is easily expandable with different combinations of modules to serve your needs. Also, unlike certain proprietary software that is very limited in function, the LogiTRACE

Software Architecture does not limit you in the number of modules you can install. Modules Modules are the major building blocks of the LogiTRACE

Software Architecture, each module consisting of a specific function:

Acquisition Module: Media and signal acquisition Analyst Module: Stimuli and scripts Analysis Module:

Psychophysiological and physiological analysis Alert Module: Notification and alerts

Charting Module: Plotting and data visualization Communication

Module: Peer-to-peer interfaces for remote data monitoring Demultiplex Module: Bitstream demultiplexing Display Module: Graphical presentation and memory management Exception Module: Exception handling, data handling and logging Event Module: Event capture, analysis and statistics Evaluation Module: Neurophysiological and neurocognitive evaluation Grade Sheet Module: Result printing and grading Graph Module: Graphical interface and presentation of data (e.g. EEG, EOG, EMG) Imager Module: Media and video presentation Integrity Module: Data reconciliation and error correction Interfaces Module: Interfaces to the system or peripheral devices IO Module: Setup, test and handling of serial devices Interrupter Module: Automatic triggering of acquisition, analysis and communication Navigator Module: Navigation, automatic transfer and recording of data Notifier Module: User notification of results and events PDF Module: Print-as-PDF Precall Module: Precall handling Signal Manager Module: Signal management System Module: Management and administration functions SuperModule: Any combination of the above modules Modules can be added and removed at any time. Also, in the latest release of the LogiTRACE Software Architecture, a module can be removed and replaced at any time, while at the same time setting up a new module. This is done with the user having full control of his system's functionality and settings. Data Logging To prevent any loss of data, the LogiTRACE Software Architecture automatically saves data from the modules and the user's
